AGILITY & DIGITALISATION

Psychological Safety & Self-Organisation
Edmondson / Laloux / Groysberg: Modern cultures create psychological safety, purpose, and intelligent decentralisation – and are purposefully aligned with strategy and environment rather than following a trend.

- ▲Frédéric Laloux (2014)

Diagnostics & Evidence over Recipes
Cameron & Quinn's CVF maps org-level culture profiles (e.g., stability ↔ flexibility, internal ↔ external). Denison links these profiles to strategy demands and performance. Shift from copying tips to evidence-based, context-specific design: read your culture, then align it.

MEASUREMENT & DIAGNOSTICS

- Rensis Likert (1967)
- ★William Schneider (1990)

Measuring Fit: Person–Organisation Fit
Schneider (ASA) / O'Reilly et al. (OCP): Schneider's ASA shows how attraction, selection, and attrition pull people and culture toward value congruence. O'Reilly, Chatman & Caldwell's OCP make that congruence measurable. PO-fit predicts commitment, retention, and socialisation—the micro-engine of cultural reproduction.

PLURALISM & INTERPRETATION

Culture Becomes Visible and Nameable
Schein / Deal & Kennedy / Hofstede: With levels of culture, symbols/rituals, and dimensions of values, culture gains a common language and initial measures – it becomes manageable and changeable.

ORGANIZATION & CULTURE

- Philip Selznick (1957)
- ★Peter F. Drucker (1954)

Learning Beats Control
Argyris & Schön / Drucker / Weick: learning is the true steering mechanism of modern organisations: It replaces control with reflection, discipline with dialogue, and uncertainty with meaning.

View of Humans Guides Leadership
McGregor (X/Y): How leaders perceive people (as needing control vs. being self-responsible) shapes leadership style, incentive systems, and culture – often more significantly than formal rules.

Contingency over Doctrine
Burns & Stalker: Effectiveness comes from fit. In stable settings, mechanistic designs (rules, clarity) work; in uncertainty, organic designs (decentralization, flexibility) win. Align structure and daily cultural habits to context—no one best way.

GROUPS & MOTIVATION

From Structure to Social
Hawthorne & Barnard: Performance is shaped not only by processes and plans but also by group norms, belonging, and informal cooperation. Culture thus becomes a factor of productivity.
